

References

1. Lee MEM, Ockendon H. The transfer of fibres in the carding machine. J. Eng. Math. 2006; 54: 261-271.
2. Lawrence CA. Fundamentals of spun yarn technology. Ed. CRC Press, 2003.
3. Płonka S, Stadnicki J. The possibility of reducing the mass of the working rollers in a carding machine. J. Text. Inst. 1988; 4: 615-620.
4. Bazaraa MS, Sherali HD, Shetty CM. Nonlinear programming: theory and algorithms. Ed. Hoboken, John Wiley & Sons Inc., New Jersey, 2006.
5. Danielczyk P, Stadnicki J. Optimization of the structural form of the carding machine main cylinder. Textile Res. J. 2012; 82: 1897-1905.
6. Stadnicki J. Optimal Design of the Cylindrical Shell of a Card Machine. Textile Res. J. 1997; 67: 6-10.
7. Stadnicki J, Wróbel I. Practical Engineering Calculation for Working Cylinders of Carding Machines. Textile Res. J. 2003; 73:525-529.
8. Danielczyk P, Stadnicki J. Determining areas of safe work for doffing comb devices. Textile Res. J. 2006; 76: 905-912.
9. Danielczyk P, Stadnicki J. The model and analysis of the doffing comb device vibrations in carding machines. Fibres & Textiles in Eastern Europe 2006; 1: 83-87.
10. ANSYS Help System, 2008.
11. Bathe KJ. Finite Element Procedures. Ed. Englewood Cliffs: Prentice-Hall, 1996.